Glance at Depew and the $400,000 Campaign Fund-He's for the Bill to Stop It-Cooper Union Meeting Agrees -Cheers Also for Municipal Ownership.

The mass meeting at Cooper Union last night, called the Citizens' Union, the Reform Club and the People's Institute to protest against various so-called grab bills in the Legislature, threatened at times to become a municipal ownership feast. John Ford, who has a boomlet for Mayor on a municipal ownership platform, was one of the speakers, and the presence of municipal ownership men in the audience in great numbers seemed to be to his liking. ome of the other speakers seemed to be rather surprised

The meeting was called to discuss several bills, among them being Senater Cassidy's Max Hirschfeld, the regular leader, is ill Niagara Power bill, Sepator Goodsell's bills to permit railroads to abandon routes and validating an East River tunnel franchise and the Mortgage Tax bill.

R. Fulton Cutting was chairman long enough to get the meeting started, and then departed, just in time to escape the municipal ownership stampede. He surprised some in the audience by coming to the defence of the legislators. He said the fault wasn't with them; it was with the

"When I was up at Albany last I asked a friend of mine in the Senate if it wasn't true that the Senate was getting to be more and more a responsible body. It is, he said, and it's the independent vote that's doing it."

There were loud snickers at this. James Lehmaier talked about the route abandonment bill and the bill reviving the old treather from Forty-second street.

nel franchise from Forty-second street "The reason why these people go to Albany," he said. "is the desire to obtain these franchises in perpetuity. I am not a municipal ownership man. I still belong a municipal ownership man. I still belong to the large class that hasn't determined whether the arguments on one side overbalanced those on the other, but unless the public service corporations restrain themselves, unless the members of the Legislature cease to be their tools, the example of Chicago may be followed here."

At the first mention of municipal owner-ship there was a howl and when the speaker mentioned Chicago there was a regular Cooper Union demonstration. It lasted for several minutes. When it subsided Mr. Lehmaier said: "But I hope it won't be necessary to force upon us that issue."

John Ford declared in his first sentence that he was for municipal ownership from that he was for municipal ownership from the ground up. A whoop encouraged him to go on and take his customary fall out of the Rapid Transit Commission, which he called a "grand ducal cabal" that had given the subway to Belmont. Mr. Ford said every Tammany Senator had voted against the Elsberg bill, which provided in a measure for municipal ownership. "What are you going to do?" he asked.
"Hang 'em!" yelled the crowd. Mr.
Ford said that Mr. Belmont could explain how it happened the bill was defeated.

"Twenty-four hours before it was voted on," he said, "there were votes to spare in favor of it. But there came a cablegram from a distinguished ex-statesman travelling in Europe, and orders from another politician in this city lined up the Tammany men. Let us elect a Mayor and a city ticket in the fall that will be free and independent of both of these. Let us roll up a vote for municipal ownership that will make the machines tremble."

Mr. Ford, who was the only one who wore evening clothes for the occasion, had to come out and bow repeatedly in response come out and bow repeatedly in response to the cheers that followed this final utter-ance. Julius Henry Cohen of the Citizens' union had a boy bring on the files of Senate and Assembly bills presented at the last session. They were almost as high as the

"About one-fourth of those, ladies and gentlemen," he said, "affected New York city. It's about time we made up a black list of legislators who introduce bills to turn over the rights of the people to corporations. We had better start in with Goodsell and Bedell of Orange county. How about Cassidy? And how about Grady?" [A voice: "He ought to go to State's prison."] Mr. Cohen had prepared a "white list." On it were Assemblymen Prentice. Tompkins, Palmer, Stanley, Young, Agnew, Wainwright and Fuller of Brooklyn, and Senators Marks, Brackett and White. Their names were greeted with a few cheers.

He got almost as a big a cheer as John Ford. Judge Herrick said he had come to ask the audience, not to condemn a bill, but to support one. It was the bill to stop corruption at elections and the sin of buying votes. Among other things, he said:

"I appeal to you to support the bill prohibiting the buying of votes, the purchase of the Legislature, the purchase of official station, and I appeal in the name of decency. You do bad things here in New York, but they're worse up the State. So far as your election methods go they are clean compared to what they are up there.

"I've heard Tammany Hall condemned to-night. Now, I'm not a follower of Tammany Hall, but its methods are clean compared to the methods up the State. [A voice: What about Grady?'] When a father sells his own votes and the votes of his sons it's time to stop it. You've heard a great deal of centrol by corporations; how do they do it? By the use of money at the polls and by paying election expenses of candidates for public office. If you pay the expenses of a man, he wants to show gratitude and do the decent thing when a little matter comes up that you're interested in. Democrats and Republicans may say all kinds of things about each other on the stump, but they won't give away their expenses. "It's only a question nowadays who can raise the most money and spend it most skilfully. Our young men are thinking less of their righteous citizenship. When a man knows it can be offset by a $5 note, what's the use thinking much about it? Stop the people who offer the money. Make their expenditures useless. It's impossible to send them to State's prison now. The Grand Jury refuses to indict. This man must be kept in his place.' He was. That was pretty near to being a sale of the Senatorship of the State of New York, wasn't it? We don't want New York degraded to the extent some of the other States are, but we're drifting fast toward it."

states are, but we're drifting fast toward it."

Judge Herrick said that the bill would check all this because it provided for publicity of all political contributions and expenditures, and also gave the right to any one who gave a bond of $250 to make a charge of corruption, which must be investigated before an election was decided. If it was found that money had been used at all, he said, the election was lost to the side using it, no matter what the vote, and a candidate found guilty could not hold office for the next five years.

Judge Herrick's speech and his explanation of the bill provoked one of the loudest outbursts of cheering of the evening. A resolution declaring it the sense of the meeting that the bill should pass was adopted with a whoop. "There was a ball game there yesterday. The tickets for admission are free, but programmes are sold. The captain wants to know if he should get a summons for the president of the club, or if we should make arrests at the Sunday games."

The Magistrate asked if the games annoyed neighboring residents or if they could be seen from outside the club grounds. The detective said there were no residents in the immediate neighborhood nor could the games be seen from outside.

The Magistrate advised the police not to interfere.

ALBANY. April 10 .- That public sentiment in New York city is thoroughly aroused over the methods of the New York city Board of Aldermen in its disposition of applications from corporations for franchises to use the public streets and highways of New York city was fully manifested in the State Senate to-night. TRUNKS HOLD BEEF SECRETS?

FEDERAL AGENTS GET THEM BY MEANS OF A SUBPŒNA.

Were Stored in a Safe Deposit Vault Three Days After Grand Jury Investigation Began-It Is Hinted That They May Contain a Second Set of Books,

CHICAGO, April 10.—It is believed here that the Government has secured possession of incriminating documentary evidence against the packers, and this evidence will be placed at the disposal of the Federal Grand Jury which has been trying to place responsibility for alleged violations of the Sherman Anti-Trust law and the Grosscup injunction.

Secret Service men to-day learned that six leatherbound steamer trunks were hidden in the vaults of the National Safe Deposit Company in the First National Bank building. What documentary evidence is hidden in these trunks or what bearing the contents have upon the Grand Jury's investigation is at this time a matter of conjecture.

Immediately after District Attorney Morrison, who is personally conducting the beef inquiry, was notified of the finding of the trunks he appeared before Judge Landis and secured an order for the issuing of a subpoena duces tecum for Daniel Peckham, secretary of the depository company, demanding the immediate renoval of the trunks to the Federal Building.

Secretary Peckham complied with the order, and within an hour after the writ was served the trunks were delivered at the freight elevator entrance to the Monadnock building and taken to a Government storeroom on one of the upper floors.

Government officials decline positively either confirm or deny reports that the trunks contain books of account and other documentary evidence of packing house methods. At the time of the investigation of Packingtown by Commissioner Garfield and his agents, rumors were spread that the packers had two sets of books on the cost of killing and dressing cattle, only one of which was shown to the Garfield

That the books shown to the Garfield agents were favorable to the packers, as reflected in the report to Congress, is the contention of those who were not satisfied with the finding of the Department. This inference now is drawn that the other set of books, if such a set exists, was kept from the scrutiny of the Government agents. An examination of the contents of the trunks now in the Government possession, it is hinted, will result in surprising revelations on this point and may bring the Federal Grand Jury's inquisition to a speedy termination. According to Secretary Peckham of the Deposit Vault Company, the trunks were placed in the keeping of the company on March 23, three days after the Federal Grand Jury began its investigation of the so-called beef trust. Mr. Peckham refused to give the name of the person who deposited the trunks.

The confiscation of the trunks, it is declared was the result of some important revelations made by one of the Government witnesses before the Grand Jury a week ago. After a long line of questioning and cross questioning, the witness is said to have made some disclosures that led to their discovery.

TRUCK OWNERS PROTEST.

Go on Record as Against Any Restriction of Trame on Fifth Avenue.

The New York Truck Owners' Association held a meeting last night in the Grand Opera House Building and discussed the regulation of traffic in Fifth avenue. A resolution was then passed putting the association on record as opposed to any restriction of traffic on the avenue. A formal statement giving in full the reasons of the truck owners for their action is promised in a few days.

One of our reasons," said President T M. McCarthy of the association, "is that there are so many restrictions it is becoming more and more difficult for us to do business. In the congestion of traffic the chief ainners are the owners of private coaches. They should be made to take the side streets."

BLACK AND W. BARNES, JR., MEET. Senator Edgar T. Brackett Also Has Long Talk With Mr. Black.

ALBANY, April 10.—Former Governor Frank S. Black and William Barnes, 3r., chairman of the executive committee of the Republican State committee, had a long talk at luncheon to-day at the Hotel Ten Eyck. Mr. Black was in Albany to argue a case before the Court of Appeals, which will not come on until to-morrow Mr. Barnes and Mr. Black have many things in common, as a result of recent political events in the State. There is one thing that they are agreed upon, and that is they shall not stand for the nomination for s full term of fourteen years of Supreme Court Justice G. D. B. Hasbrouck of Kingston. The political friends of Mr. Black and Mr. Barnes in this judicial district are strong enough to accomplish this. Mr. Hasbrouck was named as a Supreme Court Justice last fall by Gov. Odell. The appointment was made as a slap at Mr. Barnes. Mr. Hasbrouck was appointed to fill a vacancy caused by the resignation of Judge D-Cady Herrick, who became the Democratic nowlines for Governor. of Judge D-Cady Herrick, who became the Democratic nominee for Governor. The appointment to succeed Judge Herrick belonged to Albany county, and in appointing Mr. Hasbrouck Mr. Odell ignored the applications of half a dozen Republican lawyers of Albany county.

Senator Edgar T. Brackett had a long talk with Mr. Black to-day. The general disposition among the better class of Republican leaders throughout the State is to select a new chairman of the Republican State committee, who must be a man

The committee, after discussing the matter, agreed to let Mr. Parker have his 35 minutes.
